VITICULTURE / HARVEST	The meteorological trend in 2020, was characterized by a very mild winter with modest rain showers. A serious issue, has been due to a winter tail that brought nocturnal low temperatures for several days and which created some frost problems in our vineyards. A regular season course followed favored by an ideal climate. The summertime, was sunny and characterized by hot, dry and slightly windy days, all well besides the lack of rain. The early white grapes varieties were picked in the second week of August. Sampling revealed healthy clusters and crisp, firm berries with good acidity; equally were the grapes that came in the following weeks. September's warm, dry days were perfect conditions for the remainder of the harvest, all outstanding quality.
